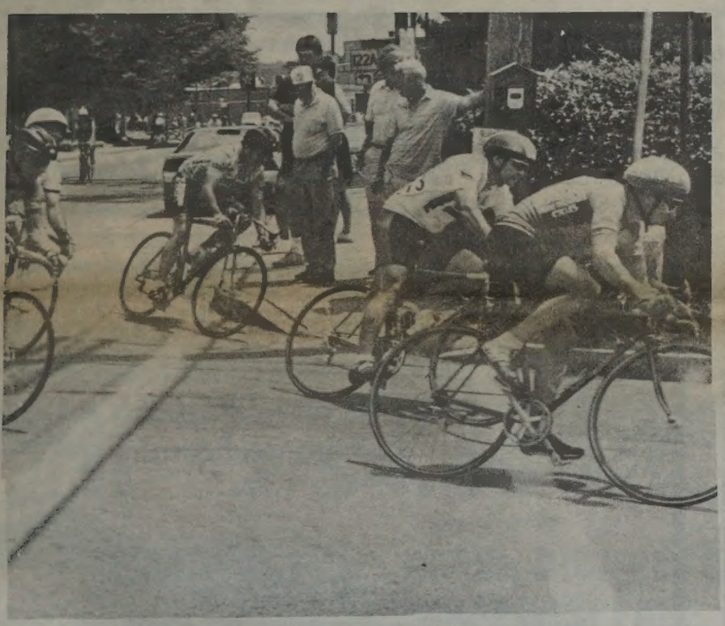
Great Shots You Thought We'd Missed!

During the past couple of months, the area has been teeming with activity. Too often, space limitations didn't allow us to include photos in that week's paper that we wanted to run. With the first round of summer holidays completed, we felt that it was appropriate to run one edition that would feature some of the past events.



CHRONICLE photos by James LeClaire

The world according to us.

It's a small place, our world.

It's made up of nearby communities and farms and neighbors we know by name.

Our headquarters are here. All our business is here.

And our interests and loyalties are here.

We're an independent community bank — and we have one purpose: to take care of our small world.

Your deposits with us are invested locally — in loans to your neighbors and communities. They're not invested somewhere else — for somebody else's benefit.

This area is our world, and you and your neighbors are the only people in it.

That makes us unworldly, doesn't it?

You bet it does.

On The Shelf

By Rosemary Waltos

This year, the Millbury Public Library has established a goal to upgrade and expand programming and services to middle grade students and young adults in order to encourage independent reading for pleasure. The library was awarded a $7,000 federal grant, administered by the Board of Library Commissioners, and additional funding from the Massachusetts Arts Lottery and the Friends of the Millbury Public Library to reach this goal.

Our first objective was to expand our young adult fiction collection and to create a collection of books on cassette. By June, we expanded our collection of young adult fiction by 13% and added 36 books on cassettes, including popular titles and some time honored classics. With the help of volunteers, we have gotten this material processed and out to the public in a matter of weeks.

Also during this time, the library continued to meet with its newly formed Youth Advisory Council (YAC). This group was instrumental in the planning and success of three young adult programs. Part of the success of these programs was the publicity campaign conducted by the YAC members in their schools. This included word-of-mouth advertising and posters. With the help of school media specialist and YAC member Barbara McCurdy, individual teachers were contacted to help promote programs in the classroom. In addition, our local newspapers published our press releases and articles, and the staff in the town clerk's office posted our notices on Millbury's local cable channel.

With all our bases covered, we are pleased to announce an attendance of 119 in our young adult programs since April. These programs included a baseball card swap, "Comic Books and Comic Book Making", and two book swaps. The most heavily attended program was the baseball card swap. Well over 75 young adults attended with many young kids and adults getting into the action. The success of this program convinced YAC to run the program again. Look for our next baseball card swap later this summer.

In addition to the baseball card program, in May the library offered "Comic Books and Comic Book Making with Mark Lynch." This program, funded by the Mass. Arts Council, filled up quickly with sixteen young adults in attendance. So much enthusiasm was generated for this program that we hope to run it again in an expanded version.

For regular readers of this column, you have probably noticed that young adults have been the focus of several previous columns. These columns have been targeted to parents and other interested adults. We have given suggestions for encouraging reading at home, updates of our student services, and recommendations for good reading for middle grade and young adult readers. In addition to the information gained from these columns, the library has also made available the RIF brochure "Teenagers and Reading," as well as the ALA brochure "Best Books for Young Adults" this summer.

One of the ways we are able to gauge the success of our programs is by tracking the circulation of materials to kids in grades five and up. We are pleased to say that there has been a 19% increase in the number of books this age group is checking out. A credit to both staff and volunteers working on this project, as well as to the parents and kids themselves responding to our services and collections.

One of the aspects of this project we are all most excited about is the location of a deposit collection of paperbacks for kids age 12 and up at Millbury's new Youth Center. This collection will be available for kids to take books home to read and then return them to the center. Maybe they will even donate a book or two to the collection for others to read.

Look for more young adult books, programs, and even software appropriate for young adults to use on our new Apple computer, located in the adult services area.

Upcoming programs include: a young adult's literary scavenger hunt complete with gift certificates and prizes; another baseball card swap; a visit from John Bellaire, the author of such favorites as THE HOUSE WITH A CLOCK IN ITS WALLS and THE LETTER, THE WITCH AND THE RING, and introductory workshops to the Millbury Public Library's student collection and services.

For more information about this project and other library services and collections, please feel free to call us at 865-1181.

Another Point of View

By Lawrence Moore

Industry in the United States is a tottering giant.

When you're tottering, there are two ways to go - either you straighten up or you fall.

Shocking reading was a book entitled "The Silent War," by Ira Magaziner and Mark Patinkin. Mr. Magaziner is a world renowned consultant to Governments and industries. Case studying eight companies, foreign and domestic, he shows how they have structured to insure their positions in the future. His study is both discouraging and encouraging, showing what has been done overseas and what can be done by American companies with the will to do it.

This is a book which should be read by President Bush and by every one of his advisors, regardless of their fields of responsibility. It's a book that should be read in every corporate boardroom.

The number of American companies now owned overseas is staggering. Included are good old American names such as A & P (Germany), RCA (France), Sylvania and Magnavox (Holland), White-Westinghouse and Magic Chef (Sweden). The list goes on and on.

It doesn't take an MIT scholar to realize that the 21st Century will be a century of technology. The nation that takes and keeps the lead in technology will be among the most prosperous, the most progressive, and among those whose people enjoy an enhanced quality of life. The very nature of business in America, with its emphasis on current profit, has made it difficult for us to maintain the lead which we have held for over 100 years.

It should come as no surprise that foreign products, either under their own names or under the names of American companies, have come tc represent a tremendous part of the "things" that are a part of our daily lives. The microwave oven was invented in the United States, but today not one is made here. The VCR was invented in the United States, but today not one is made here. Most Kodak cameras are made overseas. Even the Chrysler LeBaron Coupe is made in Mexico.

Our continuing monumental trade deficit is proof of the ability of off-shore producers to satisfy American consumers. Unfortunately, we have become accustomed to the deficit, and it no longer gets the headlines and attention it should have.

A substantial part of the problem in American industry is related to education. In the Orient and in Europe, technical and skilled craft education are much more important than in the United States. There have been rumblings about this, but we haven't done much about it. The examples exist...they need only to be followed.

The day has also passed when we can blame the high-priced American worker for our position in the areas of foreign domination. Under enlightened leadership in a modern factory, the American worker, at his hourly wage, can produce a product that is competitive. This has happened at GE, at Corning, at Honda and at other automobile companies. It has happened at A.T. Cross in Rhode Island, whose products are surpassed in the World Market and are totally made in this country.

Why are we not leading? There is tremendous cost, complexity and risk in the development of new technology. Overseas these risks are shared by consortia, by governments, and by banks. Many small countries in Europe have small manufacturers with great talent. They have crossed national borders to combine their efforts so they can compete on a global basis. In Germany, banks simply do not lend money...they become part owners of the companies in which they invest. England, France, and Germany cooperated to form Airbus. Today, Airbus is second only to Boeing as a supplier of transport planes, worldwide.

In the industrial world there is cooperation between and among nations, between government and business, between banks, government and business, and as a result, the load is shared and the benefits are shared.

All is not lost! Six leading computer and semi-conductor companies recently agreed to work together to produce memory chips. Government reaction to this creative response in a changing market was positive. Ten years ago this would have been unthinkable. There is a growing awareness that the globalization of markets is inevitable, and that a place in global trade can be more easily assured by cooperative ventures. The MacNeil/Lehrer News Hour devoted a series to the subject. Print and electronic media are waking up to the importance of the problem.

A tiny portion of our vast military budget devoted to consumer oriented technology research would, in a few years, enable our industrial complex to share more equitably in the fruits of our military/industrial efforts. We now can kill ourselves many times over. We need to prepare for the more likely eventuality that we will live in the 21st century and will have to compete with the rest of the world - a world that has gotten "a taste of honey" and will not give it up without a battle.

There has to be a re-thinking of the responsibility that government, education, industry, and labor must share in the rebuilding of American productivity. It will require new thinking and new approaches. We do not have much time. As of now, we are behind. But if we achieve our potential, the tottering giant will once again walk erect and secure its place in the global marketplace.

From My Window on Farnsworth Court

By "Pastor Rae" Cameron

Having started to write a column for the Millbury-Sutton Chronicle, I thought it a good idea to subscribe to the same. My first copy came in the mail just the other day.

The local newspaper, usually a weekly edition, is one of the prize possessions we have in the United States of America. It is through this media that we can find out what is happening on the local scene. There is an emphasis on the good things that people and organizations are doing without a lot of sensationalism.

The story is told of a visitor from another country coming to the United States and picking up several of our daily papers, listening to the radio, and watching the television news reports. To his amazement they all said the same thing. He exclaimed, "I thought you had freedom of the press!" Almost all of these use the same news service for their information. I believe it was the late Will Rogers who warned us not to believe everything we read.

"What is truth?" Pilate asked Jesus at His trial. This was in response to Jesus' statement that He had come into the world to bear witness unto the truth (John 18:37,38). On another occasion Jesus said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life" (John 14:6). Truth is not in some propositional statement, but in the integrity of the person who makes the statement. As a Christian, I believe the Bible to be the Word of God because behind its statements is the integrity of the God of all truth.

As an American, I also do believe almost everything I read and hear. Our freedom of speech makes it possible to seek out the truth. Behind our presses stands "Uncle Sam," the personification of everything for which our nation stands. Thank you, Millbury-Sutton Chronicle, for bringing us the news of local happenings and for this opportunity to share my thoughts with you all.

What's the Difference?

By Pat O'Leary & Larry Ham

HOW TO PLAY: The answers to the two clues are the same except the beginning consonant sounds are switched. For example: What's the difference between a neckwear fastener and a metal pan for baked desserts? One is a TIE PIN and the other is a PIE TIN. Sound counts, not spelling.

1. A deceased pig and a leader of a canine team?
   A [ ] and a [ ]
2. A loose-leaf binder and a marina?
   A [ ] and a [ ]
3. A forkful of lettuce and the location of a love song?
   A [ ] of a [ ] and the [ ] of a [ ]
4. Males' life stories and female chickens' puzzling secrets?

"OK, on the next pass let's bump the bottom of the boat in a threatening manner -- and quit giggling, Dave!"

EVERYTHING YOU DIDN'T WANT TO KNOW ABOUT AIDS. BUT SHOULD.

To start with, you don't have to be gay or a drug user to get it. AIDS has hit these two groups hardest because the AIDS virus hit them first, before anyone knew why or how people should protect themselves from it.

And the virus is spreading. Scientists report that about one and a half million people are already infected.

You can't tell who has it and who doesn't. Most people who have the AIDS virus don't even know it. They don't look or feel sick. It can take up to ten years for symptoms to show up. So people who seem perfectly healthy can pass the virus on to others.

HOW IS IT PASSED ON? One way is shooting up drugs with someone who's infected and sharing the needle. But most people catch the AIDS virus THROUGH SEX. A woman can catch it from a man. A man can catch it from a woman. A man can catch it from a man.

Obviously, the surest way to avoid the virus is to avoid sex. If you do have sex, YOUR BEST PROTECTION IS A LATEX CONDOM with spermicide. Use them every time, from start to finish, according to the manufacturers' directions.

You can ignore these precautions only if you and your partner have been together for at least 10 years, and both of you have been totally faithful.

Otherwise, DON'T MAKE ANY EXCEPTIONS.

Because the one time you do can be the one time you shouldn't have.

HELP STOP AIDS. USE A CONDOM.
